PARASANG. n. f. [parasang, low Latin.] A Persian measure of length.

Since the mind is not able to frame an idea of any space without parts, instead thereof it makes use of the common measures, which, by familiar use, in each country, have imprinted themselves on the memory; as inches and feet, or cubits and parasangs. Locke.

PARASITE. n. f. [parasite, Fr. parasite, Latin.] One that frequents rich tables, and earns his welcome by flattery.

He is a flatterer,
A parasite, a keeper back of death,
Who gently would dissolve the bands of life,
Which false hopes linger. Shakespeare.

Most smiling, smooth, detested parasites,
Courteous destroyers, affable wolves, meek bears,
You fools of fortune. Shakespeare.

Come, you parasite, answer me
Directly to this question. Shakespeare.

Diogenes, when mice came about him, as he was eating, said, I see, that even Diogenes nourisheth parasites. Bacon.

Thou, with trembling fear,
Or like a fawning parasite, obeyed;
Then to thyself ascrib'd the truth foretold. Milton.

The people sweat not for their king's delight,
To enrich a pimp, or raise a parasite. Dryden.

Math thy fiery heart to parch thine entrails,
That not a tear can fall. Shakespeare.

Did he so often lodge in open field
In winter's cold, and summer's parching heat,
To conquer France. Shakespeare's Henry IV.

Torrid heat,
And vapours as the Libyan air adust,
Began to parch that temperate clime. Milt. Par. Lost.

I'm stupify'd with sorrow, past relief
Of tears; parch'd up and wither'd with my grief. Dryd.

Without this circular motion of our earth, one hemisphere would be condemned to perpetual cold and darkness, the other continually roasted and parched by the sun beams. Ray.

The Syrian star
With his sultry breath infects the sky;
The ground below is parch'd, the heav'ns above us fry. Dryden's Horace.

Full fifty years
I have endur'd the biting winter's blast,
And the feverish heats of parching summer. Rowe.

He is like a man distressed with thirst in the parched places of the wilderness, he searches every pit, but finds no water. Rogers's Sermons.

TO PARCHE. v. n. To be scorched.
